

FRIDAY AWARD

The William C. Friday Arts and Humanities Research Award is an opportunity for undergrads to work with a faculty member on a research project.

Students earn a $2,000 stipend as a research assistant.

Full details:

go.unc.edu/IAH-grants

Supported by:

honors
CAROLINA

INSTITUTE for the
ARTS & HUMANITIES

APPLICATIONS DUE NOV. 11

What is the Friday Award?

- A joint venture between the Institute for the Arts and Humanities and Honors Carolina.
- An opportunity for a UNC undergraduate to get research experience by working as a research assistant for an IAH Faculty Fellow.
- If awarded, students receive $2000, paid as regular income.

Application

- Joint application available on IAH website:
<https://iah.unc.edu/faculty-resources/apply-for-a-grant/>
- Student and faculty resume or curriculum vitae
- Project Proposal
- Aspects of a successful proposal

Panelists

- Uredo Agada, History Major
 - Topic: African American Folk Art Traditions
- Inger S.B. Brodey, Associate Professor, English and Comparative Literature
 - Topic: Jane Austen in Asia

Resources

- Honors Carolina Professional Development Coaches: <https://goanywhere.unc.edu/>
- University Career Services: <https://careers.unc.edu/>
- The Writing Center: <https://writingcenter.unc.edu/>
- IAH Fellows Databases: <https://iah.unc.edu/faculty-resources/apply-for-a-fellowship/>

Contacts

- Aspyn Fulcher, Director of Student Development and Co-curricular Programming, Honors Carolina, aspyn@unc.edu
- Silas Webb, Administrative Support Specialist, Institute for the Arts and Humanities, slwebb@email.unc.edu